A quarter of a century ago, the time was ripe for some exciting new developments on the Canadian psychoanalytic scene. A dedicated group of psychoanalytic thinkers arose to creatively confront these challenges. Now as the Toronto Institute for Contemporary Psychoanalysis enters its 23rd year, we celebrate all that we and our many supporters have accomplished. A dream has been realized. The TICP is now securely established as a major contributor to the discipline in Canada and in the international arena as an ever increasing number of our faculty and graduates present their work at international conferences, publish innovative ideas in journals and books, and assume positions of responsibility in local and international organizations.

The TICP offers several types of educational programs which examine, contrast and, where possible, integrate the thoughts and methods of major perspectives in contemporary psychoanalysis. We invite outstanding international investigators to Toronto to present their cutting edge work to professionals and scholars interested in expanding their knowledge of psychoanalysis. We welcome all potential applicants to learn more about the TICP and their own possibilities within our Institute and Society.

4-YEAR TRAINING PROGRAM IN PSYCHOANALYSIS

Balancing professional training and scholarly education, this intensive program offers comprehensive, intellectually rigorous, clinically relevant seminars thirty weeks per year, supplemented by three annual weekends with Visiting Faculty.

The program’s comparative-integrative perspective facilitates candidates exploring and contrasting theoretical frameworks and learning to formulate clinical material from diverse, mutually enhancing viewpoints. Applicants generally have (or are nearing) licensure to practice as psychologists, psychiatrists, or social workers. An academic stream is available to applicants who do not wish to pursue clinical practice.

The next class begins September 2014; applications are due by May 1, 2014

ESSENTIALS PROGRAM IN PSYCHOANALYTIC PSYCHOTHERAPY

The TICP Essentials Program is a clinically focused program for those desiring to learn the basic principles of psychoanalytic therapy. It is suitable for mental health practitioners with little or no training or experience in psychoanalytic psychotherapy, and those with an interest in psychoanalysis with little or no clinical experience.

This 30-week program consists of weekly two-hour seminars covering the following topics: Introduction to the Psychoanalytic Frame of Reference, Historical Overview of Psychoanalysis, Analytic Attitude, Concepts of Development, Motivations and Drives, Object Relations and the Self, Relationality, Concepts of Change, Character, Contemporary Perspectives on Psychopathology, Empathy and Mentalization, the Unconscious, Analytic Listening, Transference, Countertransference, and Psychoanalytic Interventions.

The final eight seminars will be devoted to case presentations and will be led by senior clinicians. Class members working in a psychoanalytically informed way will have the opportunity to present cases and clinical process will be discussed.

The next class begins September 2014; applications are due by May 15, 2014

FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM: RELATIONAL PERSPECTIVES IN PSYCHOANALYTIC PSYCHOTHERAPY

The TICP Fellowship Program is designed to give mental health providers interested in psychoanalytic psychotherapy an opportunity to explore a relational psychotherapeutic model in terms of its theoretical foundation and unique clinical perspective. The Relational approach can enrich participants’ understanding of the irreducible intersubjectivity of our personal and professional lives and promote a deeper, more vital and effective clinical practice. This 30-week program consists of weekly two-hour seminars.

The first module addresses the place of relational theory within psychoanalysis. Module two covers essential papers in relational psychoanalysis. The final module will be devoted to group supervision of the participants’ clinical material with an expert Relational clinician.

The next class begins September 2014; applications are due by May 15, 2014
